1. Valentin lives in Buenos Aires in the 1960s. How does his childhood compare or contrast to your upbringing in? Were you raised in an “unconventional” atmosphere like he was?
2. The director of the film, Alejandro Agresti, says that Valentin is based on his own childhood. Do you have stories or memories from your childhood that you express through art (song, poetry, dance, etc.)?

6. The actor who plays Valentin (Rodrigo Noya) received many nominations, awards and critical praise for his performance. What did you think of his portrayal of Valentin? Did you find him believable? What other films have been told from the point of view of children, and what effect did they have on you?
7. What do you think happens to Valentin? We know that he brought Rufo and Leticia together, but do you think he is reunited with his mother? Does he go on to live with Rufo and Leticia?
8. Do you think this is a happy or sad story? Why?
9. Who was the most interested character to you? Why did this person stick out to you in the story?
10. Do you speak Spanish? If so, were you able to understand the film and dialogue without using the subtitles? If you cannot speak Spanish (or speak only a little), did you notice any differences of rhythm, expression or emphasis within the Spanish language?
